WHY THE PURCHASE OF LOTS
—IN THE—
PARK VILLA TRACT

Is the best investment of the season:

1. The Park Villa tract is the most centrally located of all. It fronts on two streets, each 100 feet wide—66 feet on Washington and 34 feet on Figueroa st.

2. Stone sidewalks are now being made along two streets.

3. Handsome residences surround the Park
Villa tract.

4. Two street car lines—the one horse car to the Agricultural Park and the two horse car pass Park Villa tract.

5. Prices are low and terms easy.

No. 1029—Two acres, with good improvements, on Hoover st.; desirable to subdivide. . . . . 200

One hundred acres very choice foothill land, free from flood; desirable for raising winter vegetables; requiring no irrigation; the finest land in the State; improvements: will divide it; 2 miles from city limits; on payments;
per acre. . . . . 300

This land is susceptible of a high state of cultivation; will produce from two to four crops per annum, owing to the variety planted, such as melons, peaches, tomatoes, peppers, peas, beans, cabbages, etc.; $100 per acre net profit is but a fair estimate on each crop; this sum was realized per acre the present year; the winter vegetable land; winter tomatoes will yield much more than $100 per acre net, and melons and potatoes will average that amount; we plant tomatoes in August, potatoes in October, November and January, and then follow with melons, on the same ground, which will bring a return of $100 per acre net, without one drop of water; this soil will remain moist the entire year by proper cultivation; two acres will make a man wealthy in a few years if properly cultivated; must be seen and investigated to be appreciated.

Twenty acres on Pico st., at terminus of the electric railroad; suitable to subdivide into lots; a bargain; per acre. . . . . 1000

Forty-seven acres, suitable to subdivide into lots; a bargain; per acre. . . . . 2000

Per acre. . . . . 1000

These fine University lots, 65x130 ft., fine soil, very desirable location, having the new University at Southern California, church, store, postoffice, two lines of street cars completed and another line soon to be built; splendid residences, excellent society and the finest view in the city, at the very low price of $200 to $600 per lot; terms easy; if you see these lots you will purchase them.

Nob Hill lots, more desirable, selling rapidly, centrally located, fine view, near cable cars, from $400 to $600 per lot.

HOUSES VALUED AT FROM $600 TO $4000 EACH

Price of Lots Only $390 Each. First Payment, $30 Cash Down. Each Succeeding Payment $15
Monthly, Without Interest.

ONE HOUSE with each twelve lots. No extra charge for houses. Location high and commanding. View charming and beautiful. The air pure and healthy. Water pure and abundant. Drainage perfect. A splendid opportunity to secure valuable property at the trifling cost of $390 per lot, payable in monthly installments of $30 cash, and each succeeding payment $15 monthly, without interest.

Forty houses without extra charge. Every purchaser gets a fair and equal chance to obtain one or more of these handsome residences, according as he or she may be the purchaser of one or more lots, the purchaser being entitled to a distinct and separate choice for every lot he or she may buy, and is to choose every time his name is called the most valuable property unrecorded up to the time his name is so called.

The entire tract is beautifully situated, and as the growth of the city is tending rapidly eastward, it is bound to become in the near future the finest residence property in the county of Los Angeles. The whole of the splendid lots will undoubtedly double in value, and those lots fronting on Pasadena ave. and all streets radiating therefrom will beyond question command a high figure, so that the lots themselves are a first-class investment at the price quoted—$390 each—not to speak of the splendid chance offered to obtain one or more of the valuable residences
The title is perfect. The titles are deposited in the hands of Rogers, Booth & Co.

Purchases of these lots are being made by residents of the adjoining towns, San Francisco, Boston, Chicago, and many of the points East, a large number already being disposed of. Quite a large proportion of the purchasers are ladies, and we especially invite ladies who wish to inquire about this property to call upon us.

If you want to secure a good investment at a very small cost, do not hesitate, but secure one or more of these valuable lots at once.

Lots can be purchased, and maps, circulars and all information may be had by application to

THE MARCH OF IMPROVEMENT.

ANALHEIM, Dec. 15.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] An active quiet phenomenon in the town of Anaheim is the march of improvement. In strong contrast with the usual dullness of this town has been developed during the last week. The change has been wrought by the operations of a syndicate of capitalists and speculators who quietly secured some fifteen or twenty of the original twenty-acre vineyard lots, together with other town properties, aggregating in value near $150,000. This was followed by the organization of the Anaheim Improvement Company, with objects indicated by the name, one of which has resulted in the formation of the Anaheim Street Car Company. The track is to be laid at once from the present Southern Pacific depot, through Center street to Olive street, a distance of one and one-half miles.

The Anaheim Gas Company has received the first consignment of fourteen street lamps, which are to be erected along the main business streets.

The capacity of the town water works has been increased by the construction of an additional water tank holding 30,000 gallons, which is supplied by a steam pump.

Work on the Riverside and Los Angeles Railroad is rapidly progressing toward Anaheim. A large force of graders are now at Horseshoe Bend, about thirteen miles from town. Right of way has been nearly all secured through North Anaheim and to Anaheim.

There was a lively flurry in real estate on Saturday last. Eighty town lots changed hands, the purchasers desiring to get in at bottom prices before the big waves of the boom should reach us. Sales of town property during the week will exceed $75,000.

The owners of the Anaheim ostrich farm lately decided to make a change in location, and the work of removal has been going on for several days. The new site is about 3 miles from town, and is thought to be better adapted to the success of the industry than the original location.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Lederkrantz Society for a grand musical entertainment on New Year's eve.

The Flanigan Hotel property was sold on Monday to a gentleman from Kansas. Howard & Lyons of Los Angeles and San Diego, have opened a branch real estate office in this town.

That Anaheim has really awakened from the lethargy which for many years has characterized her people is a fact, and that a new era of prosperity and advancement has begun causes general rejoicing.

PASADENA, Dec. 15.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The "Hawkeye" purpose a grand picnic at Lincoln Park, New Year's day. Iowans from Los Angeles and surrounding towns are invited to attend.

The Congregationalists are contemplating building a fine church edifice soon, and are now examining plans.

One hundred and sixty excursionists are expected at the Raymond this Saturday night.

The board of directors of the Public Library at their regular meeting resolved to hold an annual floral and fruit fair in February. All citrus fruit-growers especially are invited to attend.

VIEWS OF A PROHIBITIONIST.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] From Dr. Widney's article in Sunday's TIMES, it may be judged that he indulges the hope that the Republican party is about ready to take up the task of suppressing the liquor business.

Will you kindly give place to some reasons why the hope is not well founded; such reasons, though coming from a Prohibitionist, not taking the shape of an argument for prohibition or the prohibition party?

It may be safely asserted that more than half the voters of California who support the Republican party are favorable to the suppression of liquor saloons, and that a large proportion of the other half are so different on the subject that they would consent to support the party, even though prohibition were made one of its principal planks in its platform; yet it is a moderate estimate that at least 10 per cent. of the present supporters of the party in this State would be its determined opponents immediately upon its placing itself in open hostility to the liquor interest. This 10 per cent., taken from the Republican party, would add to the Democratic vote, as it undoubtedly would, would make the State irrevocably Democratic, unless some adequate gain could be counted upon to make good the loss. This gain could not be hoped for from the better classes of Democrats, as some seem to think, for the better class of Democrats, however anxious they may be to down the liquor traffic, are still more anxious to down the Republican party, as was shown by their coming up solidly, Christians and all, to defeat the Christian Sabbath only that the Republican party might be defeated at the same time.

Their hatred of the Republican party is stronger than their love for their most loved and cherished Christian institutions, and what would induce them to support that party? Certainly not prohibition. They may be good and pious, but they are not fanatics. The Republican party will have no place else to look for compensation for the loss it would sustain by placing itself in hostility to the liquor traffic, for even if all the Prohibition party voters should fly to its rescue, they could not make good the loss, and in such a case at least one-fourth of them would go back to the Democracy, from whence they came.

In view of the circumstances, although a Prohibitionist, I am not one of those who blame the Republican party, as a party, for not espousing the cause of prohibition. I may be a fanatic, but I am not so heartless as to ask a great party to commit suicide, especially when no good could be accomplished by the sacrifice. Respectfully,

JOSEPH YANSELL.

Los Angeles, Dec. 15, 1886.

THE TEMPERANCE ISSUE—VIEWS OF AN OLD-FASHIONED REPUBLICAN.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I read Dr. Widney's suggestions regarding the little differences between the two leading political parties with great interest. It is sound doctrine, through and through.

I have voted the Republican ticket, from Lincoln to Garfield, but unless they take hold of the demands of the present day they cannot count on my vote.

My understanding is that the Republican party is a progressive party, and as the Doctor says, the last half-century of its existence proves it to be so. It is admitted by all candid people of to-day that the temperance question is the most important question now before the American people, and I might add, before the whole world. The tariff, States' rights, and the few other doctrines that the Republicans are trying to ride into power on, sink into insignificance when compared with the temperance question. The Republican party in Kansas, Iowa, and some other States, were judiciously told hold of this all-important question, and the result was grand victory. If the Republican party will not accept this grand opportunity, and advocate good, sound temperance doctrine, my opinion is that its

CURRENT TOPICS.

SOME STATES THAT MAY BE SWALLOWED UP.

How the President's Wife Goes Shopping—Some Sound Advice to Girls—The Southern Pacific's Plans for Southern California.

[Springfield Republican.]

The inhabitants in the region between Charleston, S. C., and Atlanta, Ga., are slowly working themselves into the belief that they are living upon a very thin shell, and that any moment a vast caving in may take place completely engulfing two States and possibly tipping up several others. This fear is not founded upon a fear not developed by inferences. It is the result of empirical science. Facts are being gathered daily showing that an immense cavity exists in the earth in this quarter. A man in Lauren, S. C., dug a well down to a point where each stroke of the pick produced a hollow sound, and finally the bottom of the well fell out. A line was produced, but after using all the clotheslines of the neighborhood, no one could find where the bottom went to, and all hope of recovery has been abandoned. In another town a part of the highway disappeared recently into a bottomless pit, and the authorities are afraid to look into it. A local professor has made a careful computation, and says that it will take all the earth in the county to fill the cavity up, and the Road Commissioners will have to bridge it over or resign. In the town of Ninety-six, of revolutionary fame, there is a spot where every earthquake rumble in Charleston has been distinctly heard, and it is concluded that the subterranean cave acts as an air chamber through which the sound is conducted. There is a spot near Dawson, Ga., where rain constantly falls out of a clear sky. This has been going on ever since the great earthquake of August 31st. The theory is that at this place the crust of the earth is very thin and the temperature of the air is modified by the temperature of the vacuity beneath, thus producing rain. Hundreds of people have visited the spot and testified to the dampness of the drops that fall, and as Dawson is a prosperous town, no one can have the face to cast any reflections upon the trustworthiness of the evidence. We should regret very much to lose two or three States from the Union at this time, but if they should cave in it would leave an invaluable natural curiosity. Excursion trains could be run from all directions to the edges of the crust of the earth, affording at once recreation and instruction to thousands of people.

NOT FOR GROVER.

Some of the Christmas Presents Bought by Mrs. Cleveland.

[By Telegram to the Record-Union.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—A New York special says: The visit to this city last week of Mrs. Frances Cleveland, wife of the President, has created much small talk in official and society circles. Hitherto whenever Mrs. Cleveland came to the metropolis the fact has been announced at least several days beforehand. On this occasion the lady came unheralded. It is stated that Mrs. Cleveland made some rather notable purchases while here. A clerk in one of the stores she patronized said: "The papers say she came on to buy Christmas presents for the President, but from what I have heard of the President's build I should think that the purchases would be rather a tight fit." "Yes, and hardly warm enough for a man with rheumatism," giggled her companion.

A clerk in another well-known store has this to tell: "What a dear little man Mr. Cleveland must be! Such a little foot as the dear, good man must have—about so long," and the young woman measured off on her finger about one inch. "And what a cunning little nightcap he must wear, too; all of lace and pink ribbons and about big enough for a good-sized doll. Mr. Cleveland must look like a cunning fellow, anything in one of them, but I shouldn't think that he would want to wear them on the street."

Mrs. Cleveland is credited with having purchased a little silk lace cloak about large enough for a fairy, and tiny suits of lamb's wool and long-skirted, lace-trimmed dresses, with cunning bib attachments. Certain it is that she took back to Washington with her more trunk than she had when she came to New York, and if the dapper clerks and blushing salesladies tell the truth, that trunk contained an outfit that even the most aristocratic French dolt ought to be proud to possess as a Christmas present.

Girls Should be Useful at Home.

[Harrisburg Independent.]

There is a large class of Americans—people of opulence, men of acquired or inherited wealth—who do not hesitate to inculcate the belief among their children, and especially their daughters, that it is useless and unnecessary for them to learn to do anything useful in connection with domestic manual labor. It is no uncommon expression in the higher circles of society for ladies to declare: "My husband" or "my father" is rich; why, then, should I demean myself by manual labor?" In such "society" it is deemed vulgar for a lady to know how to do a useful thing in connection with house-keeping. Parents in these classes rear their daughters not to learn to do anything useful, and many mothers whose husbands are under a hard strain every day in the year to find the where-withal to keep up appearances impress their daughters with the idea that labor is degrading, and that a hand which shows any sign of manual work will not be sought in marriage by a gentleman. We confess we do not know how true this is. If it is correct, then indeed, is it the evidence of a lack of manhood, and if it is not true it is a wicked delusion on the character of an American gentleman.

Girls who won't learn to do useful things at home because their fathers are rich lose opportunities to fit themselves to meet the exigencies and the accidents of life. It has always been the custom for the Princes of Germany to learn trades. The Bourbon Princes of France all acquired trades. Some of them were printers, bookbinders, shipwrights, housecarpenters, joiners and painters; they did not follow these vocations, but they understood them. Royal and princely ladies in Germany and France understand every function of house-keeping, and know how to perform the duties of a dairy and a cow and a horse with dexterity and satisfaction. The Prince of Wales is a bookbinder, each of his brothers has a trade and his sons are now learning trades according to their tastes. All the ladies of the English royal household are accomplished in practical things—they know how to do useful things, even if they are never called upon to perform them.

The manliness or sentimentality which encourages girls not to learn to do useful, practical and strengthening labor is a deaument of the noblest impulses of nature. When such an impulse is encouraged it tends to deprive girls especially from developing their mental and physical forces, to enervate them and improve functions which, if properly trained, might develop the good and the grand in their character. Work properly performed is a recuperator, not an exhauster, of mental and physical forces. Knowledge is power is an axiom as old as truth. To know how to do the useful is an accomplishment of which any girl can be proud, an especially an American girl.

The Prospective Railroad.

The Sun's telegram from San Francisco yesterday, announcing the intention of the Southern Pacific managers to visit San Diego and the rest of Southern California, for the purpose of ascertaining if this section needed more railroads, and if so to build them, is accepted as an endorsement of the Sun's prediction some time ago that this road really intended to extend their line from San Diego. We are not arrogant in the belief that the Southern Pacific will come to San Diego City alone for the commerce that we can send over their road at the present time, but it can be truthfully maintained that the trade of a rich interior country, together with the commerce of this bay, plainly justifies the building of one or two more roads immediately into this place. Of course the Southern Pacific has another motive—perhaps the most powerful that impels anybody to move. This motive is retaliation. The California Southern is now building into Los Angeles ever two lines as fast as labor and capital can push it ahead. These roads are the one from Riverside down to Anaheim and thence to Los Angeles; the other is the one upon which work was commenced in earnest on Tuesday last at San Bernardino, and will tap a marvellously rich section of country along the south base of the mountains to Los Angeles. The Southern Pacific must build feeders in self-defense, or go to the wall. There is an antagonism between the two companies that cannot be quieted. Each of them have unlimited resources, and it is hence a war of gladiators—the immovable against the irresistible. Southern California, for the purpose of this gladiatorial contest shall occur, but unlike the shedding of human blood in olden times, every step taken in this fight means an added lustre to our fair land; it means the growth of fruit and bloom of flowers, fragrant exotics where now the repellent weed of the desert grows, and myriads of homes in bowers of peace and plenty where now a squatter dwells in isolation and somber loneliness. Our valleys and mountain slopes will soon bear the snort of the iron horse as well as the plaintive toot of the owl and bark of the coyote.

To My Wife.

Lucey, don't you hear the voices, gentle voices in the air; Like the wing of a pinion, like the panting of a prayer, Like a dream of beauty fled, When we cannot quite remember what the angel vision said? Oh, the voices of the restlessness! Time's melancholy, With the twilight singing minor and the dawn's electric air, And the clouds of glory round, And their brows with garlands bound, And a million golden minutes strewn like grain upon the ground. Ah, they must be up the river, and it cannot be a dream, For the wind is blowing soft, my love, is blowing down the stream, And a note is waiting to your ears, What your listening spirit hears, Till the past grows dim and dimmer through the haze of years, And a little form in white seems to rise beyond the rain, And a little hand to beckon, and a little voice to call, To your heart a moment pressed, Then away to be a guest, And to sing the angels in the gardens of the blest. For the little infant spirit that a brighter angel bore, A daisier angel challenged at the threshold of the door, As returns the morning rain, To the heaven or the mountain and the glory of the main. In his arms the angel clasped her, and as he turned and smiled, He saw there, the mother of a sinless angel child. Ah, the beauty that she wore, Born so softly on before, Just to learn the heaven for "welcome" to that bright and blessed shore! But Lucey, 'twill be by and by, when Jesus comes, And many a sad December night has played a solemn tune upon your hair, Forgets to melt and fingers there, And form so frail and faded trembles in the old arm chair. Then here's my hand my dearest, well travel on together, In days both clear and cloudy, in rude and rainy weather, Till the winter at the last, Shall the shadows eastward cast, And our lives and loves forever shall be blended with the past.

THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

EX-PRESIDENT ARTHUR AND MISS FREELINGHUYSEN.

The Slayer of Col. Ellsworth's Murderer—A Conundrum in the Dead Letter Office—"Old Crazy Horse." He of the Horny Hand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1886.—[Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.] There seems to be an unusual amount of marrying going on through the country, and Mr. Huntington, the railway king, told me the other day that he considered it a sign of commercial prosperity, a more reliable one than the rise in the price of stocks. Washington is the Mecca of the newly married, and has never been so full of bright-looking brides and bewildered-looking husbands as now. At the Ebbitt House, which is their favorite stopping-place, there are from ten to twenty couples with the brand fresh on them, every day. At the President's public receptions, that are held three times a week, at noon, they all gather, and he has learned to spot them with unerring accuracy. Seldom does he let a bride pass him without a whispered word of congratulation, but he has not got the nerve of Gen. Sherman, who always insisted upon giving his good-looking one that called at his headquarters to take a look at the great soldier, as tourists do.

Speaking of the Ebbitt House reminds me of a good joke on the proprietor, Mr. Caleb Willard. The Willard Hotel is kept by a Mr. Staples, and is owned by the brothers of Caleb Willard, between whom there is not a friendly feeling. Last summer Caleb went down to New York, and he learned to spot them with unerring accuracy. Seldom does he let a bride pass him without a whispered word of congratulation, but he has not got the nerve of Gen. Sherman, who always insisted upon giving his good-looking one that called at his headquarters to take a look at the great soldier, as tourists do.

"Mr. Willard, the next time I go to Washington I am going to stop at your hotel. The last time I was there I went to the Ebbitt House, which I think is the meanest place I ever put up at."

Mr. Willard, of course, did not give himself away, but enjoyed the joke as much as any one, and could not help telling of it when he got home. The last act of ex-President Arthur's life was to write a telegram to Mr. Tillie Freelinghuyesen, to whom it was often said that he was engaged. About 9 o'clock of the evening before he was stricken with apoplexy, and thirty-six hours before he died, he received a message from her saying that she was to leave Lenox, Mass., where she had been spending the summer, the next morning, and asking if he would be able to see her if she called at his house on her way through New York. He replied, asking her to stop by all means, as he would be delighted to see her. When she came, however, he was unconscious, and did not recognize any one again.

There was no truth in the story of the engagement, but the ex-President was very fond of her, and she was always at the White House assisting Mrs. McElroy on occasions of ceremony. After President Cleveland came in Mr. Arthur spent three weeks at her father's house, and the families visited each other a good deal.

The annual sale by auction of the articles of value that have come to the Dead Letter Office during the last year, with no sign by which they might be traced to their owners, is now going on and there is a good deal of fun connected with it, as the packages are sealed and no one knows what he is getting. It is a good deal like buying a lottery ticket or a pig in a poke.

The Superintendent of the Dead Letter Office tells me a good story of something that happened there the other day. The clerks are mostly ladies and are very skillful in deciphering blind inscriptions, but a letter came into their hands the other day that puzzled the most ingenious, and was passed through several hands before it was translated. It was a single line of paper and read as follows:

Dear Jim: Wynheldonturite.

The lady in whose daily batch of decipherable manuscript it came was puzzled, and she had no idea what it meant. She turned the page sideways, endways, upside down, crosswise and catcattered, and read it in all the languages she knew, but could find no meaning to the words, and finally decided that it was some form of cipher, and it was passed over to another lady, who is very skillful in cryptography. The latter took it home with her at night, and put it under her pillow, but her dreams gave her no clue to the interpretation. The letter was passed around the room, and every one gave it up, until it came to an old man who had been in the Dead Letter Office since it was organized. He took it in at a single glance, and with his pencil wrote this line:

"Why in—don't you write?"

Then it was plain enough to everybody, and the lady clerks blushed. "What can we do to reward this great discovery?" they asked. "Keep the grass banged on my grave," replied the veteran.

A soldierly-looking man, who has attracted a good deal of attention on the streets lately, is Lieut. Frank E. Brownell, formerly of the Eleventh Infantry, United States Army, but now on the retired list and living at Detroit. Lieut. Brownell was a member of the famous Ellsworth Zouaves, and was with Col. Ellsworth at the time he entered Alexandria on the 14th of May, 1861. The Confederate flag was flying from the cupola of the Marshall House, then kept by Capt. James Jackson. Young Ellsworth ordered Jackson to pull the flag down. The latter refused to obey, whereupon Ellsworth and Brownell, who was then a corporal, went up to the roof, drew down the stars and bars and started back. At the foot of the stairs they were met by Capt. Jackson, who poured a load of slugs into Ellsworth, killing him instantly. Brownell raised his rifle and shot Jackson through the heart. For this act he was made a lieutenant in the Eleventh Infantry, and his commission was dated on the day it occurred. In the October following he was promoted to first lieutenant, and in 1863 was placed on the retired list because of disabilities received in the line of duty. Lieut. Brownell was somewhat surprised to find in Washington, occupying a position of clerk in the Land Office, Miss Jackson, the daughter of the man he killed. She was appointed last spring by Secretary Lamar upon the recommendation of the Virginia Congressmen.

There is a good deal of interest felt here in the result of the Senatorial election in Nebraska, and I know of a number of Senators who would give all their old boots and shoes if they could prevent "Old Crazy Horse," as they call Van Wyck from coming back. Although he poses as an anti-monopolist, and the friend of the horny-handed farmer, he lives in the most elegant style, and owns one of the finest residences in this city. It is furnished without regard to cost, and with much taste, and the Senator enjoys the luxuries of life as well as any one, although it is said that when he is out campaigning among the Nebraska farmers, he always wants to have a straw tick to sleep on, and says he cannot rest on anything else. In the midst of the most expensive Turkish rugs and bric-a-brac, the friend of the workingman can be found smoking fine cigars, and the elegance of his surroundings would surprise the farmers of Nebraska, who suppose that he gets up every morning at daylight and milks his own cow. He has a public life dozen servants, a coachman in livery, like all the swells, and rides to the Capitol and to the Departments in a fine carriage drawn by thoroughbred horses.

When any of his rural constituents come to town he always receives them hospitably, and makes his elegance count by telling them that he keeps so large a house for their benefit, so they will not have to pay hotel bills, and so many servants that he may make them comfortable. His whole salary is spent, he says, in entertaining his constituents, and they go home impressed with the evidence of his self-sacrifice. Although he is the great corporation fighter, he has his pockets full of railway passes, and explains it by saying that the first rule of warfare is to forage on the enemy. His horses and carriage are brought from Nebraska free of cost by the railroads, and there is no man in public life who accepts so many favors from corporations, and makes so much row about the evils of monopolies.

The Senator has a passion for going to auctions. There is scarcely an auction held in Washington at which he cannot be found. He seldom bids on anything, but appears to go for amusement, and it is about the only one he has, as he is never seen at the theater or other places of amusement.

BEVERLY CRUMP.

The Closing of the Year.

(Brooklyn Magazine.)

A few more days and the year which to some has brought happiness, and to others misfortune will be added to those which have passed before it. Many will during the present month sit in retrospective thoughts over the events which have marked the year in their lives. To the young the years speed not fast enough; to the old they are all too short. The young man employs the closing of one year in preparing for the next; the aged man muses over the events of past years, and contemplates the mysteries of the future. In the lives of many the year has proved a memorable one, while in those of others it has been marked with no special events. The hopes of one have reached fruition, the aspirations of another have fallen short of success. And thus the last day of December will bring alike pleasant and sad memories. There is a lesson to be drawn from the closing of every year that may well be the opening of the new one. It is by deriving profit from the past that we can improve the future. If we have undertaken enterprises during the present year that have proved unsuccessful, we can now, on looking back over the ground, see more clearly what our mistake was or wherein we failed, and by having undergone such experiences we are far the better off. We have been taught lessons which we might otherwise have learned, and in our future undertakings the great value of them will be apparent to us, if now they yet seem unnecessary and unproductive of good. There is a lesson in all our failures, and we will be wiser in the new year. So long as we profit by what has occurred during the year now rapidly drawing to a close, it will not have been wasted. The experience of the old year will make our success in the new year more assured, for we will have learned what shoals to avoid in the sea of life. If our bark has just ground over the rocky reefs with but slight injury, let us feel thankful that we were not entirely wrecked. The closing of another year will also remind many of the necessity of acting in the present rather than postponing to the future. It will teach us, perhaps, what may have escaped us before, that the sun assiduously descends to its setting, and that the year is a nation, our history is unequalled for activity, enterprise, and thrift, yet how many are loitering by the wayside, contending to themselves that there is plenty of time in which to attain a certain end; then, rousing up suddenly, how surprised are they to find that the opportunity for their achievement has passed. These and scores of other lessons will be suggested to many with the close of 1886.

Seven Ways of Marrying.

(Brooklyn Magazine.)

There are seven separate and distinct ways in which the nuptial knot may be tied, attending expense varying from one thousand dollars. The least expensive, and the one seldom adopted, except in cases of elopement, is that afforded by the justice's office. A couple can be firmly united in the space of a minute for a small sum. It is customary for a groom to dress as he may please when the marriage is to be performed by a justice, and a dress suit would be sadly out of place in a musty law office. The one great advantage of the justice's office marriage is its cheapness. As some people object to being married by a justice of the peace, preferring the sanction of the church, in addition to that of the law, the young people may visit a parsonage instead of a justice's office with the same preparation. The ceremony may be fully as informal when performed at the minister's home, the only difference being that not less than $3, and, better still, $5 or $10, should be paid for the service, although there is no fixed sum charged.

The most popular ceremony among people who do not class themselves as in society, and also among many who do, is the old-fashioned home wedding, where the bride is attired in a suit of plain white or a traveling dress, and the groom in a plain black or brown business suit, where only a few friends and relatives are present. The affair is informal, perhaps a modest supper or lunch being served after the ceremony is performed, and the entire expense to the groom being covered by twenty dollars, or even less. This is the most popular wedding ceremony, and this is the way in which fully twenty-five per cent. of young people are married.

Next in point of favor and inexpensiveness is the informal church wedding, being similar in all things except that the service is performed within the portals of the church. If the affair is strictly private, the bride and groom may be unsupported, or have bridesmaids and groomsmen, as they please. In the latter case full-dress suits should be worn, increasing the expense. The "full-dress wedding," as it may be called when the ceremony is performed at home, is held in favor. Elaborate trousseau, full-dress suits, bridesmaids and groomsmen, flowers in abundance, and a host of invited guests are the requisite, followed by a reception, feast or lunch, as the contracting parties may desire. The cost of such a wedding is, of course, very large. The seventh and last, and most popular, is the full-dress affair performed in church. Among people who desire to create a stir in society this is the most popular, and in many cases unsatisfactory.

The Favorite Food of Some Noted Men.

(Pall Mall Gazette.)

The meals of Charlemagne consisted never of more than four courses, and his favorite dishes were eggs and roast meat, particularly venison, which was served on long spits by his foresters. Luther preferred Torgau beer and hock to all other beverages. As a young man, Melancthon was very fond of barley soup, and he would often exchange a diet of meat for a bowl of barley soup. Small fish, vegetables, and all kinds of farinaceous food he liked, but large fish and meat he disliked, and he hated all public meals or drinking parties. Torquato Tasso was very fond of preserved fruits and all kinds of fancy sweets.

Henry IV was often ill from eating too many oysters or melons. His favorite drink was vin d'Arbois. Peter the Great liked nothing better than Limburg cheese. Charles XII, King of Sweden, preferred a piece of bread and butter to anything else. Voltaire, like Frederick the Great and Napoleon I, was very fond of coffee. His favorite food was omelette, but he preferred oranges to any other kind of food. The Dutch lady scholar, A. M. Schumann, ate spiders as a delicacy. Lessing preferred lentils, and Klopstock, who was a real gourmet, fed on salmon, mushrooms, pastry and smoked meat. Of vegetables he liked peas best, and grapes as dessert, together with a bottle of good claret or hock.

Kant retained till his old age a preference for potatoes, and he ate them a day to his dinner. Schiller was three hours a day to his dinner. An old note book belonging to a Stuttgart restaurant contains some items about "Meals for Dr. Schiller in 1782," from which it appears that, besides a bottle of wine, ham was every day among the dishes on Schiller's table. Matthiessen confessed a preference for peas, beans and pork. Lord Byron fed on chestnuts with ale or porter. Pope was "greatly interested" in venison; Jonathan Swift in turbot, and Sir Walter Scott in roast goose.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF

the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, do hereby certify that

James C. Cole, plaintiff, vs. James F. Cole, defendant. Action brought by James F. Cole, defendant, for the County of Los Angeles, and the plaintiff filed in said County of Los Angeles, the Clerk of said Superior Court. The people of the State of California, do hereby certify that James F. Cole, defendant, is a resident of the County of Los Angeles, State of California, and is a person of good fame and good character.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff, in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days exclusive of the day of service, after the service on you of this summons, if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The action is brought to dissolve the judgment of this court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant, and awarding the custody of the minor child of the parties herein to the plaintiff, and for such other and further relief as to this court may seem meet, and for cost of suit.

Reference is had to the complaint for particulars of the action, and it is notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said judgment and decree of the court, to be entered and will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, this 13th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

CHAS. H. DUNSMOOR, Clerk.

By J. F. FANNING, Deputy.

OFFICE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL.
